Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 01 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Turning cooler. Becoming more unsettled by Easter Monday.

Today:
Cloud across southern Scotland, Northern Ireland, Wales and central England tending to break to allow sunny spells. Sunny and very warm in the southwest, though breezy. Much cooler elsewhere.

Tonight:
Cloud pushing into north Scotland and east England with good clear spells elsewhere. Frost likely in places, particularly parts of Northern Ireland, southern Scotland and the far north of England.

Friday:
A fine and sunny day for many though more cloud over eastern and northern parts. Breezy in the east and feeling cool along the coasts.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Mostly dry with sunny spells and some overnight frost on Saturday. Becoming much colder and windy with rain followed by showers on Sunday, with showers turning increasingly wintry by Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.